About Veronica

Veronica has a rich history of living in Italy, Belgium, London, and Dubai before moving to Australia. Being multilingual and having friends from various cultural backgrounds, she finds joy in creating connections and assisting people of diverse nationalities.

What Veronica loves most about being a relocation consultant is the opportunity to connect with people and help them feel less alone in their relocation journey. She understands the stress and loneliness that can accompany moving to a new country and is passionate about providing both logistic support and emotional backing. "For me, this job is exciting because of the diversity of people you meet," she states.

As someone who has moved multiple times herself, she advises newcomers to actively seek out and engage with local communities and interest groups. "You are not alone," she assures. "You will make connections very quickly with parents at school, or people you meet at work. There are a lot of communities...with people having hobbies (walking, sports, crafts etc) so it's easy to connect online with locals that have the same interests."

Veronica has experienced both independent and assisted relocations and recommends engaging a relocation agent "because the stress factor [is] definitely less with a relocation agent."
